Robert Carp is the current Director of Governance for the HEAA. Robert edited and co-wrote with his committee the new Alumni Association Constitution and Bylaws, which were approved by a majority vote. As Director of Governance, Robert introduced parliamentary procedures to help facilitate meetings, get the alumni voting back on track, and help define the roles of the officers and committee members for many future office holders.

Robert is a full-time lawyer in the Boston area, and also the author of a number of books. During his career, he was The Entrepreneur of The Year (1990), and specializes in creating systems for businesses, efficient structures for governance, and has served on the Board of Directors of several colleges and law schools.

Robert was a Dean's Council Member at the Kennedy School of Government, and has represented Harvard at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

"I hope to be returned to office to finish the great work our board has started, and to help insure the governance of the alumni association is accomplished by the new officers. I will work to insure checks and balances, and that all voices have an equal weight when it comes to issues that may arise. Having helped draft the Constitution and Bylaws for the HEAA, I'm familiar with all offices, committees, and the organizational structure, and have helped streamline board meetings."
