

James McCorvey ALM '16

Denver, Colorado

A nationally recognized expert in organization performance excellence, Jim has been appointed multiple times to serve on the board of examiners for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award: an award presented annually by the President of the United States to best in class organizations. Drawing upon his interest to help organizations improve their competitiveness and performance, he has served, since 2008, on the board of directors for Rocky Mountain Performance Excellence – a nonprofit organization chartered to promote a culture of performance excellence throughout Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana.

Jim taught finance courses in the MBA program at Colorado Heights University in Denver, and since 2015 has volunteered to mentor ALM students in the finance track at Harvard Extension School. He has served on numerous work related leadership boards and committees, and has held multiple leadership positions to include chief financial officer for the Department of Veterans Affairs Health Administration Center, chief financial officer for the Veterans Health Administration's Purchased Care business line, and treasurer for Rocky Mountain Performance Excellence. Jim currently works as deputy director of resource management for VHA's Office of Community Care.

“My goal as a member of the HES alumni association's board of directors is to ensure responsible governance by achieving key aspects of our governance system. I will focus on strategic planning and implementation, transparency in operations, and fiscal accountability to enhance sustainability, ongoing success, and the ability to better serve our larger HES alumni community and stakeholders. Spreading our story, engaging our stakeholders, and expanding our network will allow us to achieve our purpose to promote the educational, professional, and social interests of the alumni, and a lifelong relationship with the University and Harvard Extension School.”
Jim earned a Master of Liberal Arts from the Harvard Extension School, and completed the Senior Executive Fellows Program at the Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.
